Dear Dolphins:

It is my very great pleasure to welcome you (back) to campus!

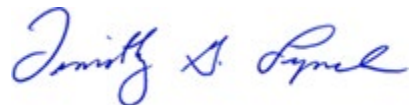

As the first week of the Spring 2022 term comes to a close, I share in your excitement as we return to mostly in-person instruction, and I urge you to take advantage of the many opportunities that CSI provides. I am proud to serve as your interim President, and while I have yet to meet many of you, I look forward to connecting with more of you in the near future.

In my first month in this role, I have learned much about CSI and the people who make it so special...and I am confident that you will find a supportive environment as you continue your studies. Faculty, administrative support specialists, and others are here to assist and are anxious to see you succeed. Additionally, whether you are a new student or returning one, I encourage you to get involved with the variety of clubs, organizations, and extracurricular programs that speak to your interests. Your future self will thank you for getting involved!

I applaud your resilience in the face of adversity brought on by a global pandemic, the attendant transition to remote learning, and the disruptions to “life as we knew it.” The entire College of Staten Island community stands ready to assist in your endeavors, and are anxious to applaud your success.

Go Dolphins!
